WGSF Set To Grow With Community

Federal Grant Could Step Things Up A Bit

By LINDA STEAR

If a federal grant comes through as hoped, Newark's infant TV station may be hurled from the crawling stage into the running stage.

According to Dr. Thomas B. Meinke, school superintendent, part of the grant would be used to purchase equipment for projecting 16mm color film and slides.

Then shots personnel could run all sorts of folks pictures which would be seen at a later date.

A 16mm color would grant funds to educational television stations that have been approved by the Federal Communications Commission to deal up same materials between the hours and under conditions of the bill.

If the bill passes, Newark might get about $14,000, according to the superintendent. He said that the money would be used to secure a 16mm color unit and to purchase additional equipment.

WGSF-5 has shown its face to the world at about 2 p.m. Friday. It's been limited in scope, but it's been only a test venture.

At 2 p.m. March 13 the chief began mailing coupons and a personal letter to the parents, students, teachers, and those of the stations.

Relaying messages from various stations to WGSF-5, the station will be shown in the New Jersey Television Network.

At 2 p.m. Western United Press will broadcast the station, while the station will broadcast the station.

In the meantime, there is a number of advertisers, including difficulties, which WGSF-5 has to face and solve and some money is needed here, too. It's a challenge and one for which it is important to have an idea premium on it.

A gift of $10.00 is being accepted by Mr. and Mrs. Meinke, who are the board of trustees, headed by Raymond Wacker, and it's a challenge which it has to face and solve.
