HEARINGS ON COLOR TV END

Decision Seen in Two Months— Coy Chides the Industry

WASHINGTON, May 26 (UP)— The Federal Communications Commission today ended its long hearings on whether color television should be authorized commercially. A decision is expected in about two months.

The three contenders for commercial authorization are Columbia Broadcasting System, Radio Corporation of America and Color Television, Inc., of San Francisco.

Television, Inc., of San Francisco. In concluding the hearings that began last September, Wayne Coy, chairman of the commission, chastiset the radio and television industry for its "inadequate" help in a technical matter necessary to the establishment of a "successful television system." He referred to data on interference problems that the commission needed in order to allocate TV channels without depriving many rural dwellers of service

Mr. Coy said that "it is apparent that not nearly as much effort and ingenuity went into the preparation and presentation" of the data "as compared with other aspects of the parties' cases."
