

A three-day color TV symposium for service technicians, held recently in Philadelphia, included a talk on color TV test equipment by J. R. Popkin-Clurman, president of Telechrome, Inc., shown below. The symposium was sponsored by the Council of Radio & Television Service Associations, a group of service associations from New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania, in cooperation with local parts distributors and manufacturers. The color TV lectures, coordinated by Lewis Winner, were attended by service technicians from many cities. This will be an annual CRTSA affair.

RCA Symposium, July 1954

Courtesy of Wallace Dickson